Michael Collins

Commercial Client Advocate
J.C. Restoration, Inc.

In the fourteen years Mike has been with J.C. Restoration, he has witnessed great change in the business: weekly sales from twenty to four hundred thousand dollars, employee counts from 20+ to 100+, a shift in strategy from residential to commercial property, and a leap from a 13,000sf facility to a 104,000sf facility.

Mike has successfully worked his way down from general manager overseeing the entire business to a humble salesperson serving the property management community. In that role, he most enjoys discussions with decision-makers regarding relevant factors to look for in the restoration company you will call upon in tumultuous times.

Mike lives now in Oak Park with his wife and two daughters after a varied career which has had him living and working in Canada, Japan, the Philippines, the Netherlands, Lebanon, and France.
